Tying Serving and Peep Knots

▲HOW IT'S DONE

Step 1 PLACE THE PEEP Slide a string separator through the strands of the bowstring, about 5 inches up from the nock, dividing the material evenly. Fit an in-line peep in the string so the strands run into the grooves on each side of the sight.

Step 2 TAKE AIM Draw the bow and move the peep until you can see your sight pins through it without adjusting your head or anchor point. Put the bow in a vise.

Step 3 START WRAPPING Thread a 24-inch piece of serving material through the gap in the string above the peep sight, leaving about a 1-inch tail. Hold the tail in place along the string. Begin wrapping the other end of the serving around the bowstring toward the peep sight, making tight, even turns. You'll cover the tail as you go.

Step 4 JUMP THE PEEP As your wrap reaches the peep, thread the end of the serving between the bowstring strands. Then run the serving along the groove on the sight and through the bowstring strands below it. Make 8 to 10 more wraps.

Step 5 FINISH IT OFF Fold a 12-inch length of serving in half. Lay this along the bowstring, with the loop pointing toward the nock. Continue wrapping for 8 to 10 more turns, then thread the end through the loop (5a). Using pliers, grab both strands of the loop's tail end and pull until the loop disappears under the serving (5b). Trim the ends of the loop. Place a few drops of adhesive on the serving.
